MEMORANDUM OF LAW

36 USC 302 - National Motto "In God we trust" is the national motto.

The purpose of this Memorandum is to remind the aforesaid public official(s) of their obligation to faithfully perform their duties under oath with integrity by upholding the "Law of the Land" a/k/a Common Law or Natural Law. Whereas their mandatory bonds guarantee against the public official's fraud or dishonesty and cover loss arising from neglect or omissions.

THE PUBLIC OFFICIALS BOND A STATUTORY OBLIGATION REQUIRING "FAITHFUL PERFORMANCE,"

A public officials bond refers to an instrument "by which a public officer and a secondary obligor undertake to pay up to a fixed sum of money if the officer does not faithfully discharge the duties of his or her office."¹ A statutory public officials bond is thus a public officials bond mandated by statute. Black's Law Dictionary defines "official bond" as "a bond given by a public officer, conditioned on the faithful performance of the duties of office."² In the three-party surety structure, the public official is the principal, the bonding company is the surety (sometimes called the secondary obligor), and the government or, in many cases, the public being served by the official is the obligee.

Statutory bond requirements are found within the individual state codes.³ They are typically interspersed throughout the code, although there is typically a "Public Officials" or "Public Office" chapter that has the general bond requirements and procedures as well as the authority for the issuance of such bonds. The requirements for the various individual officials, however, are found within the specific chapter relating to their office. In general, bonds for public officials that are required by statute (hereinafter, "Official Bond[s]" or "Public Officials bond[s]") are mandatory for all elected and most public officials. This can range from the governor to local school board members. Statutes may require an Official Bond for an individual public official or may allow a blanket bond for a group of officials, such as the members of the board of directors.⁴ Depending on the statutory language, an Official Bond may be a "faithful performance bond," "fidelity bond," "public employees blanket bond," or "public employee dishonesty policy." While "faithful performance" bonds are by far the most common Official Bonds, the others may also be statutorily required.

"Statutory bonds" by definition, Official Bonds are required when a statute so dictates. Often, the bond is required to be effective before or upon the taking of the oath of office by the employee or official. In other cases, an official bond may run indefinitely, covering each successive employee or official as they take office. The statutes will either mandate⁵ or authorize⁶ the procurement of a bond. If the controlling statutory language merely "authorizes" the issuance of a bond that bond will only be a statutory Official Bond to the extent the language of the bond reflects the requirements and intent of the statute.⁷ In Price v. Arrendale a bond was procured by the governmental entity to protect itself from losses caused by the employee's failure to perform his duties. Because the bond did not meet the criteria set forth in the authorizing statute, it was held to be a non-statutory bond, not subject to the provisions of the code affecting official bonds.

² BLACK'S LAW DICTIONARY 171 (7th ed. 1999).

³ All fifty states have statutory bond requirements.

⁴ 6 Compare KAN. S TAT. A NN. § 19-4207 (2005) (excluding county treasurer from officials that may be bonded with a blanket bond) with KAN. S TAT. A NN. § 19-4203 (2005) (stating that for county officers and employees, a blanket bond may be purchased to cover both elected and appointed officers and employees).

⁵ See, e.g., A RK. CODE A NN. § 25-16-502 (2005) ("[T]he Auditor of State shall execute and deliver to the Governor a bond to the State of Arkansas ...")

⁶ See, e.g., A RK. CODE A NN. § 26-52-105 (2005) ("The [Income Tax Director] may require such of the officers, agents, and employees as he may designate to give bond for the faithful performance of their duties")

⁷ See Price v. Arrendale, 168 S.E.2d 193 (Ga. Ct. App. 1969).

The Public Officials bond is commonly issued to protect against conduct or omissions by the named public official that constitutes a breach of the public official's duties of office. These bonds guarantee against more than the public official's fraud or dishonesty and, in certain cases, can cover loss arising from neglect or omissions.

A Public Officials bond may be issued for the benefit of the governmental unit in which the principal holds office, but also it can provide coverage to the general public.⁸ The Bond is "in the nature of an Indemnity Bond rather than a Penal or Forfeiture Bond; it is, in effect, a contract between the officer and the government, binding the officer to discharge the duties of his or her office."⁹ The Official Bond is not intended to protect the principal or the public official himself but rather is intended to protect the city or the entire citizenship served by the official.¹⁰

The Official Bond indemnifies those who have suffered a loss as a result of the official's misconduct, and in many cases the state statute will include a provision specifically allowing a member of the public to bring suit against the bond, if that individual has suffered a loss resulting from the official's misconduct.¹¹ To that end, while there is some varying degree of specificity in the statutory requirements, almost all satisfy the general purpose of requiring an official to issue a bond for the faithful performance of his or her duties. An Official Bond is taken "as assurance of compliance with the law."¹² It is designed to ensure that the official or employee will faithfully perform his or her duties while in office.

OATH OF OFFICE

So help me God." This section does not affect other oaths required by law.
